On Friday, April 19, Armstrong State College inaugurated its fifth President, Dr. Robert A. Burnett. Following a luncheon in his honor, Dr. Burnett and a host of Armstrong faculty, staff, students, and representatives from universities around the country, filed into the Fine Arts Auditorium for the ceremony. Chancellor Vernon Crawford, officially installed Dr. Burnett as President to a rousing ovation. President Burnett's inaugural address highlighted Armstrong's past and looked to its bright future. A sunny reception was held immediately after the ceremony as the President received congratulations from all.

Inaugural Address

Dr. Robert Burnett, Armstrong's fifth President, follows Earnest Lowe, Thomas Askew, Foreman Hawes and Henry Ashmore as the leader of Armstrong State College. The future appears to be in good hands as Armstrong surges into it's second 50 years.

Chancellor H. Dean Propst, Dr. Joseph Killoran, Former Chancellor Vernon Crawford and Dr. and Mrs. Burnett share conversation during the luncheon preceeding the inaugural ceremony.

Birthday Celebration

Armstrong State College celebrated its 50th Birthday on May 27th. Entertainment from the ASC Chorus, Jazz Band, Comedian Tim Settimi, along with a variety of carnival games and booths highlighted the afternoon. Several thousand friends of Armstrong enjoyed the festivities, which culminated in a cake cutting and a street dance.

Masquers Presents "Who's On First?"

The A.S.C. Masquers, under the direction of John Suchower, presented the Jack Sharkey comedy smash "Who's On First?" during fall quarter. The play opens as Camille (Vicki Bridgewater) gives a dinner party. Don (Brian DeBolt) shows up in a jealous state suspecting that his wife, Alice (Lisa Martin) has been seeing another man. Alice and her friend Ben (Anthony Edenfield) arrive at the party displaying quite innocent affections. However, before realizing this, Don shoots Ben then accidentally shoots Alice and Camille. Wounded, Camille hobbles to an antique lamp she has purchased and proceeds to rub it, wishing all the while the party had never taken place. Little does she know, the lamp is magical and hears her wish. Doomed by magic (or is it?) the four are destined to live this hour over and over again until it comes out right.

Miss ASC

The 1986 Miss ASC Scholarship Pageant was held Saturday, November 2 in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Contestants competed for a full years scholarship. They were judged on the basis of an interview, the swimsuit, evening gown, and talent competitions. Shelia Cathcart was crowned Miss ASC 1986. DeeDee Haley was the first runner-up and won the talent competition. The other contestants included Rachel Benitez, Kim Morgan, Leslie Newsome, and Karen Lynn.

Soccer

Pirate

The 1986 Pirates moved one step closer to division I status this year with another successful season winning 15 games and losing but 12. Led by the inside force of Tim Sellers, scoring and rebounding by Rob Lane, Donald Johnson and Keith Atkins and a hustling defense inspired by Jim Pollman, the Pirates regained some of the luster of the memorable 1984 season. With re-emerging fan support and promising recruiting on the horizon, the Pirates should continue to be a force in the Big South Conference.

Lady

The 1986 Lady Pirates finished with a record of 11 and 14 in a demanding schedule. Coach B. J. Ford's ladies suffered a mid-season setback when Norma Faison went down with an injury, but pulled together to play tough down the stretch. Dee Burns and Kim Pitts provided needed strength up front while Katy Ballance and Tee Dixon supplied court leadership ability. The future looks bright for the Lady Pirates who will have depth and experience next year.

Geechee 35-85

In this mirror
 Seeing myself being seen
 Down whorls of dark bright halls
 Decades down
 I lean upon the lens of the past
 Looking back at me
 Leering lovingly
 As it rises from that slow-flying dark

 Into heron-crest light, like sweethearts
 Whose celebrations breathe all languages of then and here to be.

Pine, begonia, holly and geranium now,
Boisterous wreaths of song in storm
The rose always all ways

Oaks, azaleas, wisteria and coral vine then
Movement wearing down to echo,
Always the rose,
Commingle like new wild nerves

On this mirror where
I see myself being seen,
A stricken dancing dream myself
Leering lovingly as good new light
Wheels upon the breath of memory
Rising from the slow-flying dark.

History Of Armstrong

Thomas Gamble, mayor of Savannah in 1932, is generally credited as the moving force behind the founding of Armstrong College. Mayor Gamble was extremely interested in the junior college movement and visited junior colleges throughout the state and Florida.

In February, 1935, Mayor Gamble announced plans to establish a junior college in Savannah. Seven months later Armstrong opened its doors to the first class of 185 students. During those brief months, a number of things were accomplished, including the passage of a city ordinance authorizing the establishment of a college, the passage of an enabling bill by the state legislature, the appointment of a governing body (the Armstrong Commission) to oversee the operation of the college, the appointment of Ernest A. Lowe as dean, and the gift of the magnificent Armstrong home near Forsyth Park in downtown Savannah.

According to Professor Joseph Killorin, Calloway Professor of Literature and Philosophy, "the city began the two-year college in 1935 at a moment when the need for higher education was dire. The college during its junior college career served a number of students who went on to other colleges. Had it not been for the foresight of the founders, a number of the best people in Savannah would not have gone to college."

The Armstrong home, built about 1920, was grand, complete with sterling silver door-knobs, carved woodwork, and showers outfitted with perfumed shower heads. Quite a grand setting for a noble purpose: educating Savannah's future leaders.

December, 1935, saw Mr. Lowe named president and the arrival of a new chemistry professor, described by the local newspapers as "35 and single." The new instructor, named Foreman M. Hawes, came to Armstrong from an assistant professorship at Georgia Tech.

Armstrong, supported by the city of Savannah, moved ahead at a rapid pace. In November, 1935, the college received a government grant of $29,996 to match the sum of $33,000 voted in a bond issue by the city for an already much-needed addition. The building, adjoining the original Armstrong home, was to house four classrooms and an auditorium.

In February, 1936, Mills B. Lane made the first of many generous gifts which the college would receive from the Lane family. He donated the residence of Judge George T. Cann at 20 W. Gaston Street.

Armstrong announced the inauguration of its first evening classes for adult students in August, 1936, a development which was to soar to a registration of more than 800 in the period following the Korean War. Armstrong was clearly meeting the needs of the community. In June, 1937, Armstrong graduated its first class of 78 students.

Through the years, Armstrong continued to grow and in 1941 a new science building was authorized and named after Mayor Gamble. In 1944, Mr. Hawes was named President. Though the war years were tough, Armstrong continued on it's course. Many Armstrong students, graduates and faculty members served their country in Europe and the Pacific. Many came back, some did not. Nevertheless, Student activity increased with the refinement of the Inkwell (student newspaper) and the development of the Mercury, a literary publication. Intramural teams such as the Scholars, Loafers, Terrapins, Slick Chicks and Sassy Strutters exemplified the upbeat spirit at Armstrong after the war.

Studying sure makes you hungry!

The period following the Korean War saw a growth that taxed Armstrong's capacity to the utmost. Headlines in 1955 warned that "Armstrong May Clamp Limit on Enrollment" and in that year, the first request was made to the Board of Regents for Armstrong to be taken into the University System. In January, 1959, Armstrong became a member of the University System as a two-year unit known as Armstrong College of Savannah. Financial support shifted from an overloaded city budget to the state. Consideration was given almost immediately to the desperately-needed expansion of the college. Numerous areas were considered downtown in the vicinity of the Armstrong home. Everyone realized that expansion was needed, especially in view of the enrollment forecasts of 1,800 for 1970.

Mills B. Lane stepped forward in 1963 and speaking for the Lane Foundation, offered to buy 250 acres of land outside the city limits for the creation of a totally new campus. Five months after the offer was made, a site was agreed upon in the Windsor Forest area. In the midst of this expansion, news came of Gov. Carl Sanders' most emphatic campaign for higher education. The Regents approved Armstrong's elevation to senior college status in 1964 and authorized the sum of $2.25 million dollars for construction of the new buildings. President Hawes, having worked relentlessly for the expansion of the college, retired, and was replaced on July 1, 1964 by Dr. Henry L. Ashmore. Dr. Ashmore came to Armstrong following 10 highly successful years as president of Pensacola Junior College in Pensacola, Fla.

The true meaning of "in your face"

In the fall of 1964, there were 35 faculty members. Only one held a doctorate. Total enrollment of day and evening students was 980. By fall quarter, 1965, faculty had grown to 56, 30 per cent of whom held doctoral degrees. The increase was in direct anticipation of the move to senior college status. In December, 1965, the new campus was occupied and the first classes met in new buildings in January, 1966. A junior class was added in the fall quarter of 1966 and a senior class followed in 1967. The first four-year degrees were conferred in June, 1968. With increasing enrollments, it was apparent that additional classroom space was needed. Construction began in 1967 on two additional classroom buildings bringing the total number of buildings to 10. Throughout the first decade as a four-year college, Armstrong continued to grow in enrollment, faculty and in degree offerings. In the fall of 1969, Armstrong's enrollment topped 2,000 for the first time. Five years later, enrollment went over 3,000.

A new student center was opened in 1970 and a $2.5 million Fine Arts Center was completed in 1975. The center houses a 1,000 seat auditorium which is used not only for campus events but by various community groups for plays, concerts, and recitals. The latest addition to the college is the $2.5 million Human Services Building which houses all the health-related courses and programs. Designated one of four regional health professions centers in the state, Armstrong prides itself on the quality of it's health professions graduates. Programs include dental hygiene, nursing, medical record technology, respiratory therapy, medical technology and health science. Armstrong underwent a reorganization in 1979, resulting in three schools: Arts and Sciences, Human Services, and Education.

Today's enrollment hovers around 2,900 students. There are 15 departments and three programs offering more than 50 majors on the associate, baccalaureate and master's level. The college has 155 fulltime faculty, more than 50 per cent of whom hold the doctorate. As in past years, Armstrong is developing to meet the needs of the Savannah community, the state of Georgia and the southeastern United States.

Special Thanks

The editor of a yearbook, along with the members of the yearbook staff always receive credit for the successful completion of the yearly publication. In the editor's message, thank you's abound, ranging from "thanks Mom and Dad" to "I couldn't have done it without Budda!" This short message is meant to say "thank you, we couldn't have done it without you" to the people who take the pictures, John and Jeff Gulle. These guys are a helluva couple of good photographers as well as being my good friends. "YOU NAILED IT DUDES!!!

Editor's Message

When the going gets tough . . . several things occur.

First and foremost a person learns a great deal about patience, pain and perseverance. If I was ever unsure about my performance under pressure I am in the dark no longer. My mind and body have experienced the torment of deadlines. There are grindstone marks on my nose, and I have emerged with a better understanding of myself and a successful publication (I hope you agree).

When the going gets tough . . . a person learns a great deal about the people around them. While I would enjoy basking in the light of an acclaimed yearbook, I cannot fool myself. The 1986 Geechee Staff produced this book. They are a dedicated group of individuals. Armstrong is fortunate to have persons of their caliber in attendance here.

When the going gets tough . . . a person learns a great deal about the dedication of friends. Special thanks to Carla English who stayed with the Geechee from beginning to end. Thanks to Patsy Estes who typed designed and cheered me up when I was screaming obscenities at all the work to be done. Also thanks to Al Harris, an advisor and good friend, and to Dr. Strozier.

I leave Armstrong with mixed emotions. I'm saddened that I must leave an institution with great opportunities for all students, both in academics and extra-curricular activities. I'm happy that I had a chance to serve this school and that I received a quality education from one of the most underrated colleges in the country.

When the going gets tough . . . the tough laugh and ask from more!
